31 selected for University Honors Scholarships

July 12, 2016

Story

Indiana State University has awarded the University Honors Scholarship to 31 outstanding freshmen set to begin their studies this fall

The students chosen for these competitive scholarships demonstrated high levels of academic achievement throughout high school and during an on-campus interview process. Specifically, students are required to have at least two of the following: a cumulative GPA of at least 3.75 on a 4.0 scale, a score of 1200 on the SAT or 26 on the ACT and a ranking within the top 10 percent of their high school class.

"The University Honors Scholars are invariably among of the finest students enrolled at Indiana State University," said Greg Bierly, executive director of the University Honors Program. "As the largest cohort of competitive scholarship recipients participating in the Honors curriculum, they are the core of the program's membership. Many of our strongest students academically, as well as the dedicated leaders of campus organizations, come from this class of scholars. I am excited to meet and work with this talented cohort of students in the fall semester."

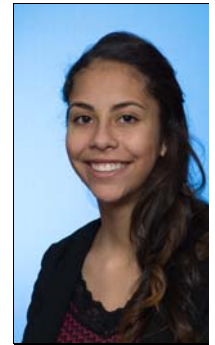

The scholarship is worth full in-state tuition for four years.

Recipients are as follows:

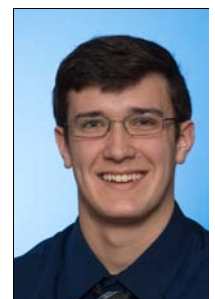

Alyssa Bush of Plainfield, Ind., is the daughter of Lisa Bush. In high school, Bush was the president of her school's Octagon Club, a member of show choir, Spanish Club and National Honor Society. She plans to study nursing at Indiana State.

Maleyke' Owens of Terre Haute is the daughter of Wesley and Malissa Owens. While in high school, Owens played basketball and volleyball. She was a member of DECA, the Girls Choir and was involved with Calvary Temple Church. She plans to major in nursing.

Chandler Ramey of Effingham, Ill., is the daughter of Troy and Kristina Ramey. While in high school, Ramey was captain of the varsity volleyball team. She was a member of the Math Club and a camp counselor. She plans to major in nursing.

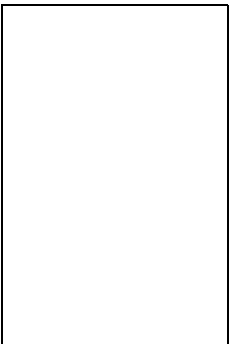

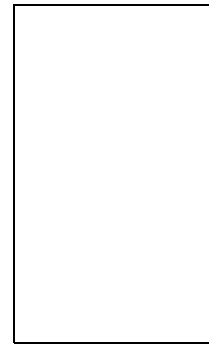

Anthony Froehlich of Cannelton, Ind., is the son of John and Sheri Froehlich. In high school, he was member of the cross-country team and captain of the soccer team. Froehlich was also involved with the Hometown Collaboration Initiative. He plans to major in architectural engineering tech at Indiana State.

Reagan Gambill of Sullivan, Ind., is the daughter of Scott and Angella Gambill. While in high school, Gambill was involved in National Honor Society, Beta Club and Spanish Club. She was captain of the tennis team and was an active member of her church youth group. She plans to pursue a nursing major at Indiana State.

Marissa Carter of Fairfield, Ill., is the daughter of Harry and Kim Carter. In high school, Carter was a member of Power and Grace, Fairfield Area Swim Team and a student athletic trainer. She was also involved with FFA and was the vice president of National Honor Society. Carter plans to major in athletic training at Indiana State.

Bianca Sloan of Peru, Ind., is the daughter of Nelson Sloan. Sloan was a drum major, a member of color guard, swing choir and drama club. She was involved with National Honor Society, Key Club and Tiger Leadership. She will be pursuing a degree in English teaching.

Jocelyn Brink of Terre Haute is the daughter of Christopher Brink and Lynette Isbell-Purnell. In high school, Brink was the captain of the color guard and winter guard. She was involved in National Honor Society, Model UN and a member of Keep Terre Haute Beautiful. Brink plans to major in earth and environmental science.
