MESSAGE TO CAMPUS
February 14, 2021

The current weather forecast predicts a major snowstorm beginning overnight and intensifying sometime tomorrow afternoon. Given the travel challenges presented by such a storm, especially during the end of work day travel time for most employees, we encourage all employees capable of working remotely, including faculty with scheduled classes, to do so on Monday, February 15. Those who cannot work remotely should report to work as usual. We will make a determination about work attendance on Tuesday, February 16, on Monday after further assessment of the storm and evaluation of the current weather forecast.
