Winners of the Division of University Engagement Awards announced

Indiana State University Division of University Engagement announces the winners of the Spring 2021 Awards. The awardees are individuals, businesses, and non-profit organizations that have risen above and beyond expectations to help the University and the local community get through the pandemic.

"Every year, the Division of University Engagement recognizes students, faculty, staff, and community partners doing great work to advance the engagement of Indiana State University with the community," said Nancy Brattain Rogers, Ph.D., Vice President for University Engagement. "This year, our awards acknowledge those who have made a positive impact during the pandemic, and they have our heartfelt thanks."

The Division selected winners and honorable mention recipients for:

- The Innovation Award recognizes for-profit and nonprofit organizations in the Wabash Valley that successfully created or launched a new business, product, or service during the COVID-19 pandemic.

- The Unsung Hero Award for individuals of the Wabash Valley including members of the ISU community, who demonstrated an extraordinary commitment and went beyond the call of duty in service to their community and/or company during the pandemic.
- The Resilience Award recognizes Wabash Valley businesses that demonstrated the ability to adapt and persevere during the pandemic.
